

A Special Line of Undermuslins

Cut Particularly For Stout Figures

Women who have hitherto had difficulty in obtaining satisfactory undermuslins because the ordinary garments were too skimpily cut, will find just the undergarments to please them in this special line.

These undermuslins are cut very full and large, especially for the stout figure. They are well made of good materials, and are neatly trimmed in many pretty styles.

Priced most attractively.

and green and white bunting and the stands were packed with government officials, members of the diplomatic corps and relatives and friends of the veterans.

Patriotic Enthusiasm.

Scenes of patriotic enthusiasm marked the passage of the veterans by President Wilson. Frequently the president waived his hat to the old soldiers. The cheering in the review stand in front of the White House was almost constant.

As a fife and drum corps of veterans passed playing "Rally 'Round the Flag Boys," many in the president's stand joined in singing the chorus. As each contingent swung along, applause broke out afresh and many of the old soldiers responded to the president's greeting by waving flags.

Tired by the march from the capitol to the White House a little more than a mile, veterans looked exhausted when they reached the president's stand. Many leaned upon younger and more robust comrades. A few strode forward with unfaltering steps.

The president stood throughout the entire review, removing his hat each time an American flag passed.

Great Applause.

Veterans fife and drum corps got most applause from the stand. There were times of course, when the shrill tones from the fife sounded a little weak but that made no difference to those that heard. One corps was followed by a single soldier marching equipped just as he had fifty years ago, his knapsack and blanket strapped to his bent back. On his shoulders he carried the same musket he used throughout the war.

From the standpoint of old soldiers, today's parade was the greatest event of the encampment.

At the treasury, where the swinging columns could be seen coming up the avenue, cheering was loud and prolonged. The older of the veterans doffed their caps or hats. Others, however, who considered themselves younger, answered the applause by skipping around the street every now and then just to show that they were still spry and active.

The paraders themselves cheered as they rounded the corner at the north of the treasury where a big banner stretched across the street bore Lincoln's commendation of the soldier.

"There is one debt this nation can never pay—the one it owes to the defenders of the Union."

The banner was a duplicate of one that hung across Pennsylvania avenue in the same location during the review of '65.

receive their papers promptly. The Shower of Gold department issues voting certificates that may be held until the last day of the campaign.

By turning in subscriptions promptly, the candidates are able to secure the coupons from the paper served their new subscribers. Not only that, but it should be remembered that every subscription turned in before Saturday night at 9 o'clock counts more votes than at any time during the remainder of the campaign, and also counts more toward winning the $50 gratification. Votes issued on subscriptions may be held until the last day of the campaign.

If you have not had your baby's picture taken you should look after it at once. Have you received the order? If not call the campaign manager immediately and ask for it and you will receive an order on the Ideal studio where all pictures are taken free of cost to parents. W. R. Hook, proprietor, gives personal attention to pictures taken in the campaign so you will be sure to have a good picture of your dimpled darling when the pictures are printed in this paper in the near future.
